Route network

SWISS to connect Geneva with Munich and Frankfurt

From March 31, SWISS will connect Geneva with the German cities of Munich and Frankfurt on a daily basis for a seven-month period. The flights to and from Frankfurt will be partly operated by Lufthansa.

From March 31 to October 26, Swiss International Air Lines (SWISS) will commence regular service to Munich and Frankfurt, offering its passengers an even wider range of destinations from Geneva. SWISS will operate five flights per day between Geneva and Munich. Passengers traveling from Geneva to Frankfurt can choose from eight daily flights, of which four will be operated by SWISS and four by Lufthansa. These new routes cater to business and leisure travelers alike.

Expansion of the Geneva fleet

With the addition of six summer destinations to Brindisi, Faro, Mykonos, Alicante, Ibiza and Larnaca announced for 2019, and the introduction of regular service to the two German cities, SWISS will connect Geneva to 45 destinations. To meet this expansion of the route network, three new aircraft will complete SWISS's short-haul fleet in Geneva, consisting of seven CS300 and three CS100, by June 2019.

All flights can be booked beginning February 13.
